The Graduate School Fair 2019

The Graduate School Fair is helpful for anyone who is considering attending graduate school. Whether you are looking to specialize in a particular area or interest, expand your knowledge, or position yourself for career advancement, it's a good idea to consider all of the options available, including graduate school.

This fair today is an invaluable resource offered to the students and alumni of Brigham Young University. It allows students to learn about programs from representatives of more than 145 different graduate schools from across the country. It is an opportunity to discuss application instructions, degree requirements, and tips for acceptance with admission advisors. The Graduate School Fair also allows students to make contacts to broaden their horizons after graduation.

Today, we encourage you to go and visit with those programs you may one day be interested in attending. Whether you are a freshman, new to the idea of attending graduate school or a senior planning on attending a particular program the programs here are interested in chatting with you and helping you determine if their program is a good fit for your interests.

Of course, the most important part of preparing to apply to any professional school is to start planning. In advance. Hopefully, the information you learn today allows you to start thinking about what you need to be doing to be a qualified, successful applicant. We're here to help you along the way but the best place to start is right here.

We look forward to working with you.

Sincerely,

Kris Tina Carlston, JD, MBA
